People overestimate how popular economic progressive policies are in an election.

Quick question -- is "progressive economic policies" mean giving free shit to people?

Donald Trump can literally obliterate a 1 billion dollar campaign heralded by every institution in America and you people are still saying the trite nonsense from 2012. There's been a complete realignment.

Trump literally wears Gaudy brioni shirts while working McDonalds. He doesn't pretend to be working class trash. And you people are still "le working class" nonsense.

LBJ is one of the dumbest people on the internet. He shouldn't be allowed to comment on a political opinions thread on NADota much less moderate it.

Again, libtards: Decide if you are a Bernie liberal or a Kamala liberal. The time has come for a new wave of Progressivism in America, the old wave has failed. If you are not on board you will be left behind.

but in reality, all we're seeing is the eventual and inevitable collapse of liberalism not just in the US but around the world

there's a reason so many people are in shock, it's because liberals overrate the goodness of human beings, trust in their fellow man, trust in institutions, and always believe things are going to be okay

it's always a real shock when they're not but the next step is fascism. plain and simple. and it will in no way be an improvement on the past. prepare to suffer.
